

In honour of Mother's Day, we've put together a collection of beautiful stuff created by Canadian mompreneurs: women who have made a business out of motherhood. As if moms don't do enough already...

sling style

Disappointed with the ugly slings on the market after the birth of her first baby in 2003, Kasie Savage set out to create her own. These attractive slings encourage bonding and calm finicky babies—and they look good doing it! $80 - $88, WOMBaby.

TAG! YOU'RE IT

Four friends were fed up with their kids losing stuff (they have 11 children between them) and so Mabel's Labels was born. Some are dishwasher safe, some are washer/dryer safe and they're all personalized with your child's name. $12 - $21, Mabel's Labels.

Find it! Page 103.

ANIMAL ATTRACTION

Tai McPhail created her first soft sculpture cat for her daughter Miru out of an old cashmere sweater. Her line now includes a variety of animals, rattles and pins, all made of reclaimed 100% cashmere, mohair and wool. Dolls, $65 - $70 each, Miru's Friends.

HAPPY FEET

After being downsized out of her job at an airline, Sandra Wilson was able to spend more time at home. When she noticed her son had a hard time balancing in hard-soled shoes, she handcrafted the first pair of leather Robeez. The company now sells its huge variety of adorable little kicks all around the globe. $28 - $39, Robeez.

To glean business tips from this savvy mompreneur from Burnaby, B.C., visit canadianfamily.ca.

PHOTOS BY CARLO MENDOZA/SLING STYLE PHOTO BY TARA SINCLAIR/HINGCO